Introduction

This is the second edition of A GUIDE TO THE LITERATURE OF RURAL LIFE, the first having been brought out in the fall of 1929. Its purpose continues to be the listing of representative titles of the more recent and more accessible works on rural life. Numerous pamphlets are listed, in some instances instead of books, because they are less expensive. The emphasis is upon non-technical material. When titles listed are lengthy and self-explanatory, annotations have been omitted.

Single copies of bulletins of government bureaus and state agricultural colleges noted herein can usually be secured without charge. Therefore no prices are given for these publications, unless the free supply is exhausted.

Persons wishing to borrow books will find that in nearly all of the states they can secure library service by mail from one of the following:

The state library or library commission,
The library of the state university,
The library of the state agricultural college.

A large number of the libraries of theological seminaries also loan books by mail. A recent inquiry disclosed thirty-seven giving such service. In many instances, the extension facilities of these libraries are limited, but ministers, particularly, should make inquiry of theological seminaries in their area to learn what is available. For example, the General Theological Library, 53 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, 9, Massachusetts, is available "for every New England clergyman."

Periodicals which constantly review the literature of rural life are: Information Service, published weekly except during August by the Department of Research and Education of the Federal Council of Churches, 105 East 22 Street, New York, N. Y., at $2.00 per year; and Rural America, published monthly except July and August by the American Country Life Association, 105 East 22d Street, New York, N. Y., at $2.00 per year.

The compiler of this Guide has received generous assistance from numerous specialists whom he consulted and also from organizations which have published lists of literature.
